Hello everyone,

I hope you have all had a productive week. It certainly seems like winter is firmly here with the drop in temperature! All the frost has added to the festive spirit and our children have begun practising in earnest for the Christmas productions.

A highlight of this week has been our involvement in UK Parliament Week. Children have learnt what Parliament is and why it is important to use your voice and have your say. On Wednesday, I introduced the children to the Great Sunnybrow Debate! Football tends to cause a lot of 'discussion' at Sunnybrow, so I posed the question to the children 'Should football be banned during playtimes at Sunnybrow?' The children then had to get in to 'for' and 'against' teams and put forward their arguments for their class representatives to share. There was a heated but respectful debate then the jury were given time to ponder their result.

Road Safety

For Road Safety awareness week, each class has been out for a walk around the village to practise crossing the road safely. A huge thank you to all the parents who have embraced the advice from the Local Authority's Road Safety team following a complaint from a member of the public. It is really appreciated.

Equali-tea party

What a wonderful way to the end the week with our Equali-tea party. The School Council and Class 4 pupils were fabulous at presenting the importance of equality and we all look forward to seeing how they progress with their Rainbow Flag Award journey.

Online Safety:

Most modern-day families probably use a multitude of devices at home. Sometimes, such devices are used more often by the children of the household, with many smartphones, laptops, consoles and the like being exclusively enjoyed by the younger members of the family. However, between the online safety risks that come with this technology and the physical, emotional and mental impacts of overuse, it can be a good idea to set some ground rules for the sake of children's wellbeing.

Agreeing rules around the use of tech in the home can sometimes pose a challenge, and it can be difficult to know what's reasonable, what might be a step too far, and what doesn't go far enough. That's why National Online Safety created this free safety guide, offering you top-level advice on how to successfully think up and enforce rules for using devices.

School attendance for the week:

Class 1: 91.4%

Class 2: 98.2%

Class 3: 96.9%

Class 4: 97.0%
